

Nate Laurence is the triple threat: veteran DJ since 1995, prolific producer, and event-coordinator. All roles blend to concoct one of THE freshest talents in the new-school underground house music scene today. A career that developed over the course of a decade -- largely behind the scenes -- has now become impossible to ignore. This old-school raver (once known as DJ Unity) -- a patron of former troupe UNIK Communications - has been an undying disciple of EDM for over a decade and has been scorching parties throughout many life-stages. Amid immensely contagious energy behind the decks -- layered with dexterous turntablism -- Nate impresses even the most cynical critics one at a time, leaving "wows" in his wake. In international DJ lists, Nate has continued to inch upwards in impressive fashion with gigs reaching as far as South Africa. In 2009, Nate fulfilled an enduring aspiration by becoming a new resident DJ at the legendary First Avenue Nightclub in Minneapolis, opened in 1970 and forever known as an iconic location for dance music worldwide. In 2007, Nate released his first solo EP on Funkfield Recordings -- proving his aptitude as a gifted producer -- and began work with Chicago-based beatmaker Scrubfish (Scott Kammer). Since the dawn of their relationship, Nate and Scrubfish have begun a journey to the top. Whether solo or mutually, EVERY track they have released to date has reached Top100 lists worldwide; they hold one of the best jackin' tracks of 2008 as voted by Traxsource; caught the attention of DJ Dan in 2009 signing with him; and continue to get play from many of the worlds finest DJs. Each new release continues to outshine subsequent releases. In Minneapolis be sure to catch Nate -- and his event crew "HotDish" -- at First Avenue BLACK in the VIP every first Saturday of the month.
